ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In conventional document distribution systems, user accounts are tied to address information. Because of the highly developed information distribution system, the address information needs to be maintained in a flexible and independent manner. The address generation is optionally performed in combination with a predetermined set of rules on the addresses that are stored in an independent address maintenance unit. The address maintenance unit further optionally includes a plurality of address maintenance units.

10

5